For the second year in a row; Youth Farm and Market Project, the Riverview Economic Development Association, and El Burrito Mercado have teamed up to bring locally-grown organic produce to Saint Paul residents. The project, made possible by a generous grant from Ecolab, promises to engage youth, nourish Saint Paul's families, and keep money in the local economy.

Youth Farm and Market Project, a Twin Cities-based organization focused on connecting urban youth with their families, communities, and the earth through growing, cooking, and selling healthy food, initiated the project for the summer of 2008. Peppers, tomatillos, cucumbers, and other items grown on the West Side of Saint Paul will be harvested by youth in the morning, transported by bicycle to El Burrito Mercado, and available for purchase by mid-afternoon each week. Youth are involved in every step of the process, from planting the seeds to creating the selling price and delivering the produce. From the project, youth gain an understanding of the food supply and develop their entrepreneurial skills. Meanwhile, Saint Paul residents have access to high-quality vegetables with a low environmental impact.

The project strives to keep money in the local economy by selling the produce at El Burrito Mercado, a pillar of

The St Paul Police Department has recently launched a new community information distribution service called Nixle. Nixle is essentially a highly timely electronic based notification system that uses email and/or text messaging to reach registered users.

This service was designed to keep citizens and businesses informed by the police department of recent criminal activity, recent arrests, important advisories, public safety alerts and updates on on-going investigations happening near a pre-registered location. This pre-registered location could be a user's home, school, work or any other designated address. There is no limit to the number of addresses that can be registered on Nixle.

You can sign on to the Nixle system for information and alerts nearby any address within the City of St Paul and/or Minneapolis. Nixle is a relatively new system currently available in only a few cities nationwide.
